Synopsis:

In a rundown movie theatre in central Massachusetts, three underpaid employees tend to one of the last 35mm projectors in the state. Avery, a young cinema lover, is trained by Sam, a funny, unambitious man in his mid-30s and Rose, the rebellious projectionist that Sam longs for. As the theatre transitions to new ownership and to digital projection, the fragile ecosystem of the workplace begin to crumble. The Flick pays tribute to the power of movies and paints a heartbreaking portrait of three characters and their working lives.
